

Privacy Policy for use and access to www.gamingscotland.com

Gaming Scotland will control any information which you provide on gaining access to the Website or any registration during any visit to the Website. If you have any questions about the collection or use of your information through the site, you should contact Gaming Scotland by e-mail to staff@gamingscotland.com.

Gaming Scotland may use your information for the following purposes:

- to provide you with information about updates and changes to the Website;
- to help improve the content of the Website and the service we offers to you;
- to provide you with information regarding updates or additional services available through the Website;
- to carry out our own demographic research analysis. For this purpose we may combine your information in aggregated form (i.e. anonymous) with information about other Visitors; and for internal audit purposes.

Gaming Scotland may disclose your information:

- to protect the rights, property, or personal safety of Gaming Scotland personnel, other visitors to the Website and the public;
- to any company or other entity acquiring all or part of the business of Gaming Scotland but on strict condition that your information will continue to be used only in accordance with the terms of this Privacy Policy;
- to enforce the terms and conditions for use and access of the Website; and
- when required to do so by law.

Gaming Scotland will never disclose and/or provide your information to third parties for marketing and promotional purposes.

Gaming Scotland will not sell, rent or transfer your information.

'Cookies' are small data files sent by a web server to a web browser in order to enable the server to collect information back from the browser. Gaming Scotland may use cookies to track your sessions at the Website to identify returning visitors and to enable Gaming Scotland to customise the home page of the site according to visitors' previous browsing habits at the site. You can delete cookies from your hard drive at any time. You may also be able to set your browser to disable 'cookies'. However, you should be aware that, if you disable 'cookies', this may limit your ability to enjoy the full functionality of the Website.

Gaming Scotland may log and use your Internet Protocol address. We may use this information in conjunction with your personally identifiable information in order to improve our profile of you so that we can provide you with a better and more personal service.

If you would like us to remove your information from our database or if you no longer wish to receive information about our products and services, you may notify us by e-mail to staff@gamingscotland.com.

By using the Website, you consent to the collection and use of your personal data i.e. your information in the manner and for the purposes described in this Privacy Policy. 'For our part, we will abide by the terms of this Policy.' If we decide to change this Privacy Policy, you can decide whether or not you wish to continue to provide the same or additional data to us on the revised terms. If so, your original data will be held by us under the Privacy Policy applicable at the time when the data was received by us, unless that data is subsequently refreshed or replaced by you (in which case we shall hold the data on the terms of the Privacy Policy applicable at the time of receipt of the refreshed, repeated or replaced data).